

Staying Lean

Thriving Not Just Surviving

Otago Polytechnic
24th February 2014

- * Understand the factors that have an impact on the sustainability of your Lean Journey
- * Identify the differences between management and leadership styles and behaviours
- * Learn how to move from “we are doing a Lean programme” to “we live the Lean lifestyle”
- * Discuss your issues with award winning leaders in sustainable Lean Thinking
- * Network with others facing the same challenges

Introduction

Does your business view Lean as a range of tools and techniques? These are important, as they provide immediate, tangible benefits—but how do you ensure that these results are built upon and sustained, and that the workforce remains engaged? Poor leadership is often the reason for the poor sustainability of Lean change. Which skills that distinguish a leader from a manager could be key to the success of your Lean journey?

This workshop will help you to take Lean beyond tools and techniques, and get managers at all levels to take ownership of continuous improvement as a way of life. We subtitle it "Thriving Not Just Surviving " because Lean Thinking is a key enabler to long term success and growth.

Workshop Objectives

- * Understand how Lean Thinking provides the basis for a profitable, growing and customer-focused organisation
- * Explore a wide range of in depth case studies from many different sectors including health , education , financial services and many more

- * Understand the role of the senior team in creating a Lean enterprise
- * Share and explore your issues and challenges
